

ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH TECHNICIAN

MONTHLY SALARY

$3,900 - $5,255

Environmental Health Technicians play a crucial role in public health by assisting Environmental Health Specialists with inspections and the enforcement of environmental laws. Their primary responsibilities include identifying health issues, issuing violation notices, conducting re-inspections, and reviewing compliance permits.

Scan to Learn More or Share the Info!

Visit: bit.ly/dph-ehcareers

Education Requirements:

- Completion of 12 semester units (or the equivalent number of quarter units) from an accredited college or university in one or more of the following:
 - Chemistry
 - Zoology
 - Microbiology or Biology
- A valid California Class C driver's license is required.

